CASHBOY MAKES A DEEP STRIKE

What is said to be the deepest anybody in the Tonopah district has been opened in the Cash Boy estate is a depth of 1657 feet where three feet of high-grade was encountered. This is believed to be an entirely new ledge with a strike of about 180 degrees. Eighteen inches return a value of $700 and three feet went $200. The ledge includes a streak of blackish about eight or ten inches wide. The company is so well satisfied of the permanency of the shoot that an order has been placed for installing new shipping bins. The ore is going to the West End mill.

The fact that the rich orebody was struck at this depth convinces all engineers that the best values are to be found in the western end of the Tonopah district will be at great depth, thus giving prestige to the prospects of such companies as the West Tonopah, Great Western, Tonopah Western and the Oversight. The statement that the find in the Cash Boy at 1657 feet is the lowest working in the district is questioned by some engineers, but Manager Mead explains that, while the Victor shaft is down 1750 feet the lowest work faces of the Extension are some distance higher.

THREE WOUNDED IN ELY FIGHT

A serious shooting affray took place in the Senate saloon on Aultman street, Ely, Friday when W. L. Tuck, proprietor of the Alamo rooming house, shot and seriously wounded Jack Meagher and Harvey Lambert, proprietor of the Senate. Ed Clark, barkeeper in the Senate, had the top of his right ear taken off by a bullet. Meagher was shot through the right lung, while Lambert received two wounds, one bullet striking him in the face and inflicting a flesh wound, while the other bullet struck him in the left shoulder, shattering the upper bone of the left arm and emerging at the back of the shoulder.

According to the story told by Tuck to the sheriff he had been gambling with Meagher and Lambert in the Senate and lost a large sum of money. He said that the three of them were standing in front of the bar and Meagher was taking to him in an insulting manner about his losses and other things, when he suddenly lost his temper and pulling his gun, a .22 caliber Colts automatic, he started shooting at Meagher. Lambert, in attempting to take Tuck's gun away from him, was also wounded. The gun was empty when Tuck handed it over to the sheriff.

Erickson recently sold the family home on Knapp avenue but still retains many interests in the old camp to hold her attention in years to come. Mrs. Erickson has the best wishes of hundreds of old time friends who hope she will enjoy her long contemplated trip to the Queen City of the Rockies.

AMUSEMENTS

WILLIAM RUSSELL IN SPECIAL PRODUCTION.

William Russell, one of the most popular of all the screen stars, will be seen today at the Butler in a big special picture, entitled "Six Feet Four." Would you like to experience again some of those delightful thrills that used to chase each other up and down your spine back in the early days of motion pictures, before you became so care-hardened and blasé? Then do not fail to see "Six Feet Four" for it is the most unique, the biggest, speediest, most dramatic picture of our western country ever filmed, abounding in thrills and suspense and tense situations. Big "Bill" Russell, the most likable of all the big "he-men" who have won fame through their interpretation of man's size roles, enacts the part of Buck Thornton, nicknamed "Six Feet Four" because of the excess inches which make his stoop to enter all doors save those in his town house. He is the hardest rider, the quickest shooter, manliest lover, the truest friend of them all—just the sort of character "Big Bill" excels in portraying. There is also an absorbing plot, in which mystery, comedy and romance are delightfully blended, and there is action every second. Be sure and see it. Added to the feature will be the latest Pathe News.

Tomorrow, Tom Mix in "The Wilderness Trail."

COL. J. G. SCRUGHAM, state engineer, is on his way to Washington in the interests of the young war veterans whom he desires to see settled on some of the good farm lands Nevada has to offer home-builders.

WELCOME SNOW ARRIVES HERE

Notwithstanding the general impression that it was colder this morning than the previous day, the records at the United States weather bureau shows that the prediction for warmer weather was literally fulfilled. Monday morning at 5 o'clock the temperature in Tonopah was 18 and this morning the reading was 27. The wind, however, shifted around from northwest to northeast and was felt keenly. The velocity was moderate. From other sections of the state reports told of cold weather and it appears that Tonopah is surrounded by a belt of frigidity that resulted in a lively snow storm this afternoon, according to the forecast. Reno had trouble early this morning and the power line was out of commission, crippling the Western Union service, which was suspended both east and west. In Tonopah the power line went down about 8:30 but was due to local causes and had nothing to do with the storm. The trouble was traced to the Tonopah Extension where an old smoke stack at the McKane shaft was blown over on a power line and shorted the whole system. Kicking back with such force as to throw the switches at the sub-station. Service was restored after an interruption of about one hour.

Snow began falling here at 1:30 and the forecast favors a continuance during the night.

The deepest well in the world is at Grunow in the coal field of Upper Silesia. It has reached a depth of more than 7,348 feet below the surface.

The Chinese begin dinner with the dessert and end with soup.

In Siberia a winter rainbow sometimes lasts all day. It is caused by fine particles of snow suspended in the air.
